Course Description

Contemporary political science is a quantitative discipline. This course is designed to introduce you to the theory, process, and tools of social science research. It places a particular emphasis on research design and what assumptions we make when modeling data. Its goal is to help you develop a strong intuition about what makes credible research, and equip you with the tools necessary to carry out that research.

This course assumes no prior knowledge of statistics or programming. Once you have completed this course, you will be comfortable both designing and interpreting statistical models, as well as writing the code necessary to fit the models.

Course Prerequisites

Prerequisite/Corequisite(s): POLS 601 or equivalent.

Special Course Designation

ACST

Course Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the learner will:

- Understand the fundamentals of quantitative reasoning and research design.

- Know the basics of causal inference and understand what constitutes good evidence in social science.
- Be competent with basic computing tools like R and Git.

Textbook and/or Resource Materials

This material is: Required

Data Analysis for Social Science

ISBN: 9780691229348

Authors: Elena Llaudet, Kosuke Imai

Publisher: Princeton University Press

Publication Date: 2022-09-13

Grading Policy

---

Assignments: 50%

There will be seven problem sets throughout the semester that will be completed in R, and a research design that will be presented in the final two weeks of the semester.

Exams: 50% (25% midterm, 25% final)

The midterm and final will both be short answer exams. I will ask you to provide a brief explanation of concepts covered in class, or pose questions about measurement, modeling, and inference to you. Exams are designed to test your conceptual understanding of the material. Expect them to be light on math and programming. A study guide with example questions will be provided one week before midterms, but do not expect that questions will be exactly the same as the ones on the study guide.

Grading Scale:

A: 90-100

B: 80-89

C: 70-79

D: 60-69

Late Work Policy

---

Work submitted by a student as makeup work for an excused absence is not considered late work and is exempt from the late work policy (Student Rule 7).

Additional Course Information

Research Design Presentations

During the final two weeks of class each of you will briefly present a research design. This will be formatted like a conference presentation. Prepare a brief slide deck that explains your research question, your data, and how you plan to answer the question. Emphasize identification threats and how you will address them, and how your project makes a meaningful contribution. After your presentation, your peers will provide feedback and ask questions about your project. I encourage you to think about potential questions throughout the semester, but this is not intended to be a semester long project.

Problem Sets

Problem sets 1-4 are due any time before the midterm. Problem sets 5-7 are due any time before the final. However, I highly encourage you to work on problem sets as they are assigned. This will help you take advantage of weekly labs led by the TAs and prepare you for the exams.

R

Problem sets will largely be done in R and R studio. If you are new to programming, I highly recommend sticking with R studio as your development environment. It is very reliable software with lots of resources to help should anything break. If you already have some experience programming, you may want to consider using Positron for your development environment. While Positron is not as mature as R studio, it more seamlessly integrates with Python, virtual environments, and other file types such as Jupyter notebooks. You may not need these in this course, but these will all be valuable tools in the future if you think computing will be a significant part of your academic work.

Git and GitHub

Instead of Canvas, we will be using GitHub for posting course material and turning in assignments. Git is a tool used for software version control. It has also become a widely adopted tool for creating reproducible science. To turn in assignments you will create a GitHub repository for this course and upload completed assignments to the repository. It is not as user friendly as canvas. I understand this, and I understand that there will be some friction in using it. That's okay! The primary motivation for using GitHub is to teach you the tools of the discipline.

University Policies

This section outlines the university-level policies that must be included in each course syllabus. The TAMU Faculty Senate established the wording of these policies.

Attendance Policy

The university views class attendance and participation as an individual student responsibility. Students are expected to attend class and to complete all assignments.

Please refer to Student Rule 7 in its entirety for information about excused absences, including definitions, and related documentation and timelines.

Makeup Work Policy

Students will be excused from attending class on the day of a graded activity or when attendance contributes to a student's grade, for the reasons stated in

Student Rule 7, or other reason deemed appropriate by the instructor.

Please refer to Student Rule 7 in its entirety for information about makeup work, including definitions, and related documentation and timelines.

Absences related to Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 may necessitate a period of more than 30 days for make-up work, and the timeframe for make-up work should be agreed upon by the student and instructor” (Student Rule 7, Section 7.4.1).

“The instructor is under no obligation to provide an opportunity for the student to make up work missed because of an unexcused absence” (Student Rule 7, Section 7.4.2).

Students who request an excused absence are expected to uphold the Aggie Honor Code and Student Conduct Code. (See Student Rule 24.)

Academic Integrity Statement and Policy

“An Aggie does not lie, cheat or steal, or tolerate those who do.”

“Texas A&M University students are responsible for authenticating all work submitted to an instructor. If asked, students must be able to produce proof that the item submitted is indeed the work of that student. Students must keep appropriate records at all times. The inability to authenticate one’s work, should the instructor request it, may be sufficient grounds to initiate an academic misconduct case” (Section 20.1.2.3, Student Rule 20).

You can learn more about the Aggie Honor System Office Rules and Procedures, academic integrity, and your rights and responsibilities at aggiehonor.tamu.edu.

This includes forms of sex-based violence, such as sexual assault, sexual harassment, sexual exploitation, dating/domestic violence, and stalking.

Students can report discrimination/harassment, access supportive resources, or learn more about their options for resolving complaints on the University's Civil Rights & Title IX webpage.

Students should be aware that all university employees (except medical or mental health providers) are mandatory reporters, which means that if they observe, experience or become aware of an incident that they reasonably believe to be discrimination/harassment alleged to have been committed by or against a person who was a student or employee at the time of the incident, the employee must report the incident to the university.
